

The Meter Setter

www.fordmeterbox.com

In August of 1996, Ford Meter Box announced the launch of fordmeterbox.com. Simple by today's standards, that first website was an experiment in how the internet might be used as a communication tool for Ford customers and distributors. Ford Meter Box found the internet a powerful resource for communicating information about our products. In the past 15 years the Ford site has expanded and changed many times.

During the last several months our advertising staff has worked diligently to overhaul the website once again. This major revision improves navigation while enhancing the look and feel of the site. Although our website is new and different, the crucial content on the site remains the same.

As with our previous websites, a comprehensive list of water works product information is available including submittals, catalogs, announcements, Meter Setter newsletters and online tools. To complement our existing information pages, several new features have been added to the website to enhance the online experience.

Three new Build-a-Product windows offer unique and interactive screens to aid in ordering yokes, copper setters and pit setters. Once only available on CD, the Uni-Flange® restraint calculator is now available online. This helpful feature is accessible by both computer or smart phone. Look for new enhancements, as we continue to improve and grow our website.

We welcome all suggestions from our users on useful improvements.
